Largely dry, a lull in wind, plenty of sun.

Detailed Forecast for Sunday, 11 October, 2026

How windy? (On the Munros) Effect of wind on you?	Northwesterly 20mph around dawn, but soon easing in morning to 10-15mph, or less by middle of day into afternoon. Turning southerly afternoon, later starting to rise, to 20-30mph into evening, up to 40mph into night. Mostly small though feeling chilly at first on tops. Worsening conditions into night.
How wet? (Precipitation and its impact)	Dry overall Small chance a very brief isolated light shower. Patchy rain pushes in from southwest into night.
Cloud on the hills? Chance of cloud free Munros?	Rare patches Some patchy cloud may drift around upper slopes in the morning, but generally all dispersing or lifting above hills. 90%
Sunshine? Air clarity (below cloud)	Mostly sunny start, a little patchy cloud forming. Visibility excellent; early mist some glens.
How Cold? (at 900m) Freezing Level	2C rising to 4 or 5C afternoon; little change from dusk, then rising slightly into night. Feeling like -5C if exposed to stronger breeze early morning, again from dusk. Slight frost in glens at dawn. Around 1100-1200m in morning, rising higher, above all tops mid-afternoon onward.

All mountain areas of Britain from Monday, 12 October, 2026

Damp and mild southwesterly air moves across the country into Monday, winds strengthen again later to widely gale-force over the hills, heavier rain sweeps eastward overnight and into early Tuesday, followed by showers and a drop of temperature. Very unsettled west-southwesterlies continue into midweek - sustained mountain gales, possibly stormy at times and spells of heavy rain for all areas. A changeable westerly theme likely continues beyond mid-month - occasional windows of drier weather, but more often windy with rain or showers coming in from the Atlantic, sometimes cold enough to fall as snow on Scottish high tops.
